

A scatter plot with 20 data points of various colors (purple, blue, red, orange) distributed across a white background. The points are scattered in a way that suggests a random distribution or a specific pattern that is not immediately obvious. The colors range from dark purple to bright orange, with some points appearing in shades of blue and red. The points are of uniform size and are distributed across the entire area of the plot.